Eva Tanguay

Eva Tanguay (1879-1947) was born in Canada and billed herself as "the girl who made vaudeville famous." She was known for her suggestive songs and extravagant costumes and has been likened to Madonna or Lady Gaga. Her one recording was "I Don't Care" in 1922.

Her parents moved to Holyoke, Massachusetts in the 1880's and she began her career as a teenager at the Cohoes Music Hall. At the age of nineteen she made her debut in New York City.

Tanguay was the highest paid woman of her day but was said to have lost more than two million dollars in the Wall Street crash of 1929. Tanguay had a reputation for outlandish behavior and was once fined $50 in Louisville, Kentucky for throwing a stagehand down a flight of stairs. She died, blind and nearly destitute, at the age of 68 in Hollywood. In 1953 Mitzi Gaynor portrayed Eva Tanguay in a fictionalized version of her life in the motion picture, The I Don't Care Girl.

Performance Notes

Flute

The Bass Flute parts have been double scored so that they may be played on Alto Flute. Fluteboxing entails playing the flute and beatboxing simultaneously. Beatboxing is the art of vocally imitating drums sets and drum machines. Letters from Cohoes incorporates the most basic of beatboxing skills. Each note has a letter placed over it.

B = bass drum sound
K = snare drum sound
T = closed hi-hat sound

You can observe several good tutorials by beatbox artist, Tyte on www.humanbeatbox.com

Harp

The above notation is sometimes called the falling-hail effect. It is produced by slowly gliding in the center of the strings, with the back of the fingernails. The thunder effect is produced by using the open hand to strike the strings and immediately moving away to let the sound resonate. The pedal slides in the second movement should produce as much buzz as possible. The effect should be that of a North Indian tambura. Harp harmonics sound in the octave written. Do not roll chords unless indicated.

C clamp

A type of clamp device typically used in carpentry and welding to hold wood or metal.

Circular saw

An electric saw using a spinning metal disc or blade with or without teeth on the edge, primarily used to cut wood but sometimes equipped to cut masonry, plastic, or metal.

Cohoes Music Hall

Located at 58 Remsen Street in Cohoes, New York, the Cohoes Music Hall opened in 1874. During its history the hall featured many luminaries of the day, including Buffalo Bill Cody, John Philip Sousa, Col. Tom Thumb, and one of the greatest stars of Vaudeville, Eva Tanguay, who is said to haunt the hall to this day.

In 1905, the National Bank of Cohoes bought the building and ran a bank on the first floor. The Bank later closed the theater due to structural problems. The theater remained sealed off from the public until the City of Cohoes purchased the building in 1969 for $1.00.

The Cohoes Music Hall was renovated and reopened in 1974. The Cohoes Music Hall has since been a venue for many dramatic and musical performances, and today is the home to C-R Productions.
